

2e2's ConfigSnapshot shortlisted for the Oracle User Group Innovative Partner of the Year Award

Newbury, UK – 13th August 2010 – 2e2 today announced that its in-house developed configuration management tool, ConfigSnapshot, has been shortlisted for the Oracle User Group (UKOUG) Innovative Partner of the Year Award. This Award recognises ConfigSnapshot's ability to help 2e2's customers to implement, support or upgrade their E-Business Suites, helping to overcome specific problems and complexities facing the E-Business Suite user community.

Entering its third year, UKOUG Partner of the Year Awards 2010 is designed to provide recognition to Oracle Partners for the contribution that they make by offering their services to Oracle users. The annual customer driven awards ceremony takes place on 7th October 2010 and winners are all voted in by the Oracle community.

ConfigSnapshot customer FedEx, comments: "When FedEx needed a tool to document and baseline its nine Oracle R12 E-business instances, we chose ConfigSnapshot from 2e2. It has surpassed our expectations, saving us countless hours of documentation effort; we can document our entire Production instance in under an hour. Comparisons and baselines have quickly highlighted setup issues that would likely have been missed otherwise. 2e2 provides exceptional support and continually enhances their product to exceed customer expectations. We highly recommend it!"

Andrew Norris Commercial Director, 2e2 comments: "It is great to see ConfigSnapshot getting the sort of recognition it deserves. Through this configuration management tool, 2e2 is able to broaden capabilities and meet the ever increasing challenges facing its customers. We are pleased to showcase our ConfigSnapshot product, which provides key capabilities including full automatic documentation, fast comparison, change tracking, flexible reporting and complex analysis capabilities.
